

Russians in Minnesota

Jany. 16, 1892

Hill to Jacob Schiff

Details of the forty houses, each with forty acres, garden, cookstove, &c. prepared for the Russian Jewish immigrants, located on market route to St. Paul and Minneapolis and Duluth - two or three miles to a large sawmill employing 75-100 men. "The Jewish people here are as a rule not anxious to have any Russian immigrants come to this state." Afraid they will have to take care of them.

JJH LetterBook, 10/22/86 - 9/21/95, p. 403

