126.E.8.10F	1	Milo Edward Heddan, et al. vs. Kenneth Dirkswager/ John P. Sopsic (both Commissioners of Public Safety), et al. District Court. County of Ramsey (File No. 457862) and State Supreme Court (CX-1645 and C3-83-198), 1982-1983. Documents from the case which considered the constitutionality of Minnesota's implied consent law, under which the Commissioner of Public Safety may revoke driving privileges from persons for alcohol related offenses. The plaintiffs (Milo Heddan, Craig Miller, and Paul Lundberg), in three separate incidents, had their licenses revoked for failing Breathalyzer tests. They argued the implied consent law was unconstitutional because it allows for license revocation without due process of law. Much of their argument centered on the validity of Breathalyzer tests, particularly the September 27, 1982 ruling of Waseca County judge Lawrence Gallagher disallowing the Breathalyzer test statewide due to questions of accuracy. The next day, however, he was overturned by the Minnesota Supreme Court. District Court, 1982. Depositions, July-October 1982. 17 folders. Exhibits, 1982. Pleadings, 1982. 2 folders. Stipulations, 1982. Transcript of Proceedings, July 1982. Supreme Court Briefs, 1982-1983. Appellants Brief and Appendix, Part 1 and Part 2. Appellants Response Brief. Appellants Secondary Appendix. Respondents Appendix. Respondents Brief. Miscellaneous court documents, 1982-1983.
