@ Fother alf REMARKS Of Robert (Bob) Coate VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHRED 44 DEMOCRATIC "SALUTE TO CALIFORNIA" DINNER SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Ly- Williams DECEMBER 3, 1965 My fellow Democrats . . . tonight we meet to talk about tomorrow. We meet to measure where we stand and to chart the path to where we're going. We meet to face tomorrow's realities, not yesterday's delusions. We meet to talk about the future of our party, of our country, of the cause of mankind in the world. Private Margant - loved of here 400!

We meet to talk about the capacity for greatness and goodness in man, and not his meanness.

We meet to talk.

There was a crusty old farm leader in Washington during the early days of the New Deal. His name was George Peek. George Peek said: "The common characteristic of all uplifters is an unquenchable thirst for conversation.

They are all chain talkers."

As be it. Let us talk. Let us think. Let us agree and disagree. Then, my fellow personal Democrats, let us act.

We Democrats are uplifters. We do talk. But we also know the value of ideas and of action. We are not, as Judge Learned Hand once said of our opposition, "Old Tories. . . intellectually moribund. . . emiting dreary sounds."

My mission how

My mission here tonight, as indicated by the program, is to offer a "salute to California." - a most flux

The real worth of California is not its pleasant climate or its abundant resources.

The real strength of California is in its people -the their skills, their intelligence, their progressive spirit.

And the genius of California is evident in its leaders, most of whom just happen to be Democrats.

I've heard it said that Governor Brown has what some experts call an "image problem." The pollsters and the punsters have not been too kind to him lately.

There are two big reasons why such talk is nonsense, and why the Republicans should not order any confetti for next year.

Reason#1-

Reason#2 Pat Brown is a great Governor, and Pat

Brown wins elections.

There is one fellow with a marvelous "image" and an alliterative name who is riding out of Death Valley to save the people of California from the perils of the twentieth century.

I will just say the same thing to the people of California today that I said to some students for Goldwater whom I met in San Jose last year:

I don't mind if you study ancient history, but, for goodness sake, don't vote for it.

Last year, the people were offered a distinct contrast between Lyndon Johnson and Barry Goldwater.

That was nothing compared with the choice facing Californians next year. I have no doubt that they will choose Pat Brown's space-age government over the horse-and buggy aphorisms we're hearing these days from Brand X.

You Democrats in California have high standards of leadership for all offices, and I salute you for that.

You have a sent Lieutenant Governor, Glenn Anderson. And, Glenn, I know what it means to be No. 2.

The Democratic Party of California will win the election in 1966.

You will win with Attorney General Tom Lynch.

Lyou will win with State Treasurer Bert Betts.

You will win new margins of victory with your Democratic Legislative leaders and your Democratic candidates for the State Senate and Assembly.

I want to add a special note about a great and courageous man and leader who could not be with us tonight.

Level

He is now in Ghana on a mission for the Peace

Corps, giving up his vacation and a good part of his holiday period with his family for that valuable purpose. I salute a dear friend and an outstanding California Democratic leader, State Controller Alan Cranston.

Cranation

Let me make just one little complaint about Alan. He lured one of my long-time assistants, Win Griffith, back to California to take the job of Chief Deputy Controller. Win also happened to write a book about me last year. I am not sure I like that there's nothing more to write about Humphrey. the implication of his departure from Washington: I think there are a few chapters left in me yet. In my salute to California, its people and their leaders tonight, my real purpose is to ask you to salute yourselves for your achievements.

Sorp.

I am fully aware of the phenomenal growth of California and the incredible changes caused by that growth. Politics is no picnic in a state as vast and as complex as California. Government service and leadership is no simple task in a state of almost 19 million people - - many of them unsettled, most of them young, and all of them demanding services and attention but often reluctant to pay the costs I come from Minnesota. That state of threeand-a-half million people faces many political problems and governmental challenges. But comparing the politics of Minnesota to the politics of California is like comparing a game of checkers with a game of three-dimensional chess.

The problems and conflicts was face in governing California and in operating your own party are natural and inevitable in a state with such great and urgent issues.

preoccupation with disputes and problems and begin to take more pride in your solid achievements and challenge.

Your Governor, your constitutional officers, and your legislative leaders have done far more than keep pace with the growth of California and cope with have truly pioneered a new frontier in honest, practical, progressive and compassionate government.

I salute you for building an educational system - from pre-school through the university level - which is second to none in the world.

I salute you for breaking a delicate, regional stalemate to move ahead with an historic water program which is today strengthening your state and saving the lives of people previously threatened by floods.

Legs Juden

I salute you for your highway and treeway.

program - - for your accelerated effort to landscape and beautify those roadways.

I salute you for your continuing development of new agricultural techniques, for your enlightened programs of care for the elderly and deprived, for the great strides you have made in the field of health, for your successful efforts to create new jobs and reduce unemployment and for your determination to translate the concept of civil rights into the reality of human rights for all Californians.

And I salute you for your spectacular success in encouraging industrial expansion, which, among other things, has resulted in 52 per cent of the nation's aerospace contracts coming to California. But, please, leave something for the rest of the country.

My ultimate salute to you is not based on these big and dramatic programs. What impresses me most about your Governor and leaders and party is your imaginative efforts to try the new, to experiment, to venture into fresh areas.

I can honestly say that one of the most dramatic new projects anywhere in this nation is your Governor's program to utilize the techniques and genius of the aerospace industry to devise whole new approaches for the challenges of crime () transportation, waste management, and information retrieval.

In this, you are doing what any enlightened and modern group of political leaders and government officials should do:

Ja Mon You are marshaling the best brains and the best techniques of our nation, not just to send rockets into space, but to solve human problems here on earth.

I am sure there are timid souls in California, as well as elsewhere, who will suggest that the aerospace studies will come up with ideas and solutions which are. . . "far out". "wild". . . "impractical". . . "nutty."

Do not heed the skepticism of those who know that things won't work. I have had a bit of experience with the type.

I can remember when I first advanced the idea of a Food for Peace program. That, the cynics suggested, was a "far out" idea.

I can remember when I first advocated a determined effort to negotiate for a nuclear test-ban treaty. That, of course, was "impractical."

I can remember calling for the establishment of a United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. That was a 'wild' idea.

l can remember when I introduced the first bill to establish the Peace Corps. "Humphrey,"

Right now, I turn the table and ask you to join with Democrats and others throughout the nation in a salute to the magnificent achievements of the Johnson Administration and Congress in the year 1965.

I know that San Francisco is normally considered by national speakers to be a forum for discussion of international affairs.

I have done so in most of my visits here. But let us break the pattern tonight and examine our historic achievements at home this year. In America, today, we are building the base for a stronger and better country, able to carry its burdens at home and in the world.

Only a few years ago, I heard experts in and out of the Congress say that this or that program or idea could not possibly be translated into legislative action.

In 1965, We have a great and bold program of hospital and health insurance care for the elderly through the social security system - - diminishing the fear and enhancing the dignity of our senior citizens. They said it couldn't be done.

Jong Run

Sgth 1

medicar

le have an 800 million dollar program to provide community health centers, aid for handicapped children, medical research and construction of research facilities. They said Ogram of aid it couldn't be done

We have an unprecedented program of aid for elementary and secondary schools, with emphasis on the needs of children in low-income families.

We have a great program of aid for higher education through construction grants and scholarship opportunities for our young people.

We have a new farm bill that breaks the old patterns and will open a new era for rural America.

We have a practical, well-founded anti-poverty program.

Seek to hel

anta pronty

JALUM Si

We have a new law assuring 🔲 voting rights for all of our citizens, a vital and significant addition to the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

We have an enlightened immigration law which ends the primitive and discriminatory old "national origins quota system."

We have a new cabinet-level Department of Housing and Urban Development.

dollar public housing four-year, 7 billion

We now have federal programs to promote the arts and humanities, to beautify our highways, to help end pollution of our water and air -- to invest, to build, to strengthen America and to improve the lives and opportunities of all citizens.

Beauty

177K

citaer 807.

opportunity with

done, most of it or any of it.

I am product to have been a part of the President's successful, determined effort to achieve all these programs - - and many more. It is time for all Democrats to express pride in these achievements.

Right now I want to hear from you a salute so enthusiastic that the message will echo into Death Valley and send the Righteous, Rampart-defending Reagans of the Right back to the 18th century,

I leave you with a serious plea and challenge. In California and nationally, old problems still exist. New problems will greet us tomorrow.

or the movie studios, or wherever it is they came from.

New challenges will require the toil and contribution of all of us.

Do not fool yourselves. The Republican Party is not about to wither away. The smog which poisons our skies will not disappear just because we have passed a few new programs. Our political adversaries and our social needs will not disappear just because we point with pride to our record.

If we do not constantly renew and strengthen our sense of commitment to build a better life for all Californians and all Americans, our efforts will be languid and our successes meager.

The President is committed - - in mind, heart, and soul -- to building a stronger and better America.

"Ist out of victnam" Stopth was - negotiate 4

Governor Brown is committed - - just as totally - - to building a stronger and better California.

I challenge you to commit yourselves to the victory of Governor Pat Brown and the Democratic Party in 1966.

1968 is not far ahead. Let us keep California moving and let us keep California Democratic.

#

Minnesota Historical Society

Copyright in this digital version belongs to the Minnesota Historical Society and its content may not be copied without the copyright holder's express written permission. Users may print, download, link to, or email content, however, for individual use.

To request permission for commercial or educational use, please contact the Minnesota Historical Society.

