OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON

August 19, 1966

TO: The Vice President
FROM: Ted

At the television program following the Am Vets parade, Commander Hall will ask you the following questions. Herb Beckington has drafted answers to these questions. They are attached, along with backup material, under the numbered tabs.

1. President Johnson has said that the United States is an Asian and Pacific power. Will you elaborate further on this? What is our role to be in Asia and the Pacific?
2. What is the general situation at present in Vietnam? How is the military situation developing? What will happen in the elections?
3. What is the Administration's position on the proposal of Asian countries for an Asian peace conference on Vietnam?
4. What has been the effect of the war on Vietnam on our economy? Is it causing the inflation?
5. There are a great deal of inequities in the present draft. A number of proposals have been put forth regarding revision of the draft laws and concerning alternate possibilities of national service. What is your comment on these?

There may be a sixth question: Do you support the AmVets proposal for more national cemeteries? You will probably wish to respond to the effect that you have talked with AmVets leaders about this, that it is before the Congress, and that you hope the veterans' organizations will bring all information possible to members of the Congress.

This question-and-answer period will be covered by three network outlets in Columbus and by the local press, including AP and UPI.

(You may also be asked about "draft dodgers" in Canada. You might wish to answer: They are few in number and anyone who would leave his country specifically to avoid national service probably isn't worthy of that much concern.)
