

WELCOMING REMARKS
VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT H. HUMPHREY
DULLES AIRPORT
NOVEMBER 2, 1966

Welcome home, Mr. President -- and welcome home, Ladybird.

You have traveled many thousands of miles and been away from us many days. But by press, radio, and television, we have witnessed every stage of your journey.

We have seen and read of the warmth of your welcome everywhere. We are heartened by the reservoir of good will for America that you found on your journey.

We saw in Manila a unity of purpose which transcended differences of race and history. Your journey gave convincing evidence to the people of Asia that we are united with them in the common desire for peace and progress and that we shall stand by our word.

We are prayerfully grateful that you have returned to us safe and well.

It is good to have you home, Mr. President.
